THE GOLDEN RULE

"What kind of place would this old world be,
If for just one day, we would all agree
And live by the Golden Rule?
If we'd do unto all as we wish that they
Should do unto us, in our work and play,
On the street, at home, at school?"

The world would seem like a heavenly place;
There'd be smiles of gladness on every face,
And all men would be our friends.
Do you think we'd ever go back again
To live at strife with our fellowmen,
And working for selfish ends?

Well, perhaps the season is far away
When the world will try for even a day
To follow the Master's plan;
But it might come sooner if you and I,
Who know of the Golden Rule would try
To live it the best we can."

- M. K. Moore
